FOREWORD

Pierre Erwes
BioMarine - Chairman

Dear Biomarine Community,

BioMarine and Seaweed First are thrilled to invite you to participate on January 30-31st, 2024 to BioMarine Convention, in Biarritz, France.

This networking event explores collaboration in a multi-stakeholder's environment for blue impact. We have curated a group of project owners, investors, experts, industry all interested in testing a collaborative approach to improve and help catalyze projects for the blue economy.

We are looking forward to exploring ways to accelerate the deployment of selected innovations to improving blue strategic segments for the industry and its impact for local communities.

This meeting guide will give you a quick overview of the program and how to prepare for it to become a positive and valuable experience. We have chosen a very interactive methodology which has been tested positively during our previous editions.

This is a high-level networking meeting. All key stakeholders interested or directly linked our main themes will engage and contribute.

Looking forward to welcoming you.

NETWORKING DINER

Biarritz Aquarium

In partnership with the Biarritz Aquarium (Esplanade du Rocher de la Vierge - 800 m from BioMarine Venue)

Pick up a welcome glass in front of the shark aquarium then visit all the dedicated spaces before meeting at the turtle grotto and underwater seal observatory for the networking evening .

!!!NOTE!!! Wine of the evening will be (a wink for BioMarine)

EGIATEGIA . Subsea winemaking - Since 2008, EGIATEGIA has carried out fermentations in tanks immersed 15 meters deep in the Bay of Saint-Jean-de-Luz close to Biarritz. This stage corresponds to the second alcoholic fermentation.

The marine environment, with its extraordinary physical conditions, modifies both the metabolism of yeasts and their autolysis, thus revealing new aromatic profiles that would not have been created on land.

The originality of the concept also lies in the fact that in subsea winemaking, the fundamental steps of vinification occur in tanks rather than bottles. The shape of the tanks is designed and patented for this specific use, ensuring a safe balance of pressures between outside (the ocean) and inside (the wine).

This innovative and extraordinary winemaking method brings out flavours that would not appear spontaneously in other conditions.
